Relationships in God's Creation

- Lesson Eighteen -

Teachers (3)

Our Education is God's Arrangement

I. Overview.

School is God's arrangement for us. Not only does our society require that children get an education, but they need it for the sake of their futures as well. So all over the earth schools have been set up to help parents to educate their children. The children should respect and obey their teachers and other school workers just as they should respect and obey their parents. This is God's arrangement and we must accept it and even be thankful for it. The first stage of our lives is for education and training.

God intends that we get the best education.

Children should try to realize how much they need their teachers and their school. Getting a good education is an essential part of their lives. They should do whatever they can to get the best education. This will have a great impact on a child's future. God has prepared the way for each child to get a good education. Children should cooperate and be thankful.

II. Memory Verse.

“Be subject to every human institution for the Lord's sake...”

(1 Pet. 2:13)

III. Lesson.

School is something that God has arranged so that His people will be more useful to Him and can live better lives. It is not some kind of unplanned accident, nor is it a necessary evil. It is according to God's plan that we should be educated.

The Arrangement of Our Education

Because education greatly affects the lives and futures of children it is planned and arranged very carefully. There are laws that require children to be educated and specify other things that should happen related to school. Because it is so important even the parents do not have a choice – children must be educated. Society requires education and children must have it to be prepared for the future.

What we do at school is carefully planned and arranged for our growth and benefit. It takes many people to educate children. There are many things that must be considered to run a school. There are several subjects to study, each of them requiring text books, lessons and tests. Each school day is arranged with several classes with breaks between them for recreation. There is usually some kind of playground with equipment for children to use during recess.

There is much involved with running a school.

There is also the need for a cafeteria to serve meals, kitchen workers to prepare the food and refrigerators to store the food. There are principals, school boards, superintendents and others to help to manage and plan for all that occurs at school. All these things and many more are required in order to run a school.

Children Should Respect and Obey

Because education is such an important matter and because so much is involved with providing the education, children should have great respect for their schools and their teachers. This is something that God requires of us. Our education is God's intention.

Children should subject themselves to their teachers and other adults at their school. In the same way that children are to obey their parents they should also obey their teachers. This will make God happy and it will also be the best way for a child to get a good education.

/// QUESTIONS FOR DISCUSSION ///

1. Who has arranged that we must be educated?

2. Why is it important that a child get the best education that he can?

3. What kinds of things are involved in a school?
